ARMY CUTS RED TAPE TO ORDER 14,394 PLANES

21 Manufacturers, Including Henry Ford, Get Clear Sign For Production

TO SPEND $1,251,000,000

"Speed Up" Letters Written; Auto Magnate To Build Engines For U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Cutting "red tape" at personal command of President Roosevelt, the Army today gave the "speed up" signal to 21 private manufacturers, including Henry Ford, for immediate start of a vast program to build 14,394 fighting airplanes at a total cost of $1,251,000,000.

The program, greatest in U. S. history, brought the total number of aircraft on order for the Army and Navy to 22,691. The present combined airfleet of the military forces numbers 4,000 planes.

Under the latest army program, made possible when President Roosevelt signed the five-billion-dollar "total" national defense bill at Hyde Park, N. Y., Monday, $817,000,000 will be spent for the 14,394 planes, about $377,000,000 for 28,282 engines and $57,000,000 for propellers.

Final confirmation of the fact that Henry Ford has agreed to undertake manufacture of airplane engines was given when the Army listed the Ford Motor Company as among five companies in four states that will build the motors.

The Army sent so-called "speed up" letters to the 21 manufacturers telling them to go ahead with plans to tool factories for the aircraft program, pending signing of final contracts.

There was drama behind the scenes as the Army made known its plans. The Navy had taken only two hours Monday to announce its $4,000,000,000 program for 200 combat ships to give the nation a two-ocean navy. The President signed the total defense measure at 9 a. m., and the Navy moved by 11 a. m.

The White House had been given assurances by the Army high command that it could act with equal speed. Mr. Roosevelt reportedly chafed at delay on the army's part. White House aides at Hyde Park were said to have communicated with the National Defense Commission. It was known that the Defense Commission was prodding the Army for speed right up until the time of the announcements.

Army officials also were stung by published reports that there was confusion and indecision on its part in carrying out the defense program. By making the announcement, it told the nation that it was ready, and had been ready, to place orders for planes with 21 plants in 10 scattered states.

Actually, the go-ahead signal, while cutting time in starting the aircraft procurement program, did not give the nation any more planes. Nor was there any indication as to how soon deliveries would start. According to best

BOMB DAMAGES BUCKINGHAM PALACE DURING ABSENCE OF KING AND FAMILY

LONDON, Sept. 11.—German war planes have bombed Buckingham Palace, residence of King George and Queen Elizabeth, but no member of the royal entourage was injured, it was officially disclosed today.

Severe damage was done by a delayed action bomb which went off with a terrific detonation yesterday. It dropped out of the skies during one of the devastating Nazi raids of the week end.

The missile fell near the wing of the royal palace where visiting royalty from foreign lands—including former Kaiser Wilhelm—have been accommodated as guests for more than a century. The initial damage when the bomb first fell was small, but the explosion many hours later sheared off the entire front of the old palace conservatory which was converted into a swimming pool some time ago.

The king and queen, as well as Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, were at Windsor Castle for the week end when the bomb fell. His Majesty, returning to London to tour wrecked areas of the east end, risked his life by visiting the spot where the bomb fell, but he was not near when the explosion occurred.

The blast blew out every window on one entire side of the huge palace, heavily pitting the walls and causing some damage to interior furnishings.

I was one of the few persons privileged to visit the palace this morning to view the scene of an incident which but for happy coincidence might have left the entire empire bereaved.

A crater 30 yards across was filled with huge chunks of masonry and round sections of wrecked stone pillars were churned into the earth. For many yards around the beautifully kept grounds were littered with debris, glass and splinters of wood and stone.

The entire front of the conservatory had been cut off as by a giant cleaver and the swimming pool itself was cracked and empty.

The side of the palace where Queen Elizabeth's sitting room and the king's study are located was deeply pitted by fragments of the exploding bomb. Windows stared from empty sockets and French doors sagged at their hinges but colorful blooms in the nearby flower-beds dipped and swayed in the morning breeze.

Buckingham Palace, familiar to countless thousands of American tourists who have stood before its massive iron gates and watched the changing of the guard in the courtyard, stands at the head of Pall Mall. It was built originally in 1703 by the Duke of Buckinghamshire, from whom it took its name, and purchased by George III in 1762.

The palace has been the official residence of Britain's monarchs since the accession of Queen Victoria in 1837.

WITH announcement of orders totaling $8,861,053,312 for 200 warships for its proposed two-ocean navy, the United States has launched the greatest shipbuilding program in its history. In addition to the warships, the navy said it was ordering 2,400 more planes, to cost $108,000,000. Included in the ships to be constructed will be seven battleships, probably of 45,000 tons each; eight aircraft carriers and 27 cruisers. The Central Press graph above shows how the navy's strength will increase from its present size of 338 ships to an eventual total of 688, including ships already contracted for and those ordered, by the time the program has been completed.

F. D. R. EXPECTED TO ATTACK FOE IN TALK TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Roosevelt came back to Washington today primed with a speech which associates indicated would leave no doubt in the mind of Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie that the 1940 campaign was on in earnest.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early gave the address advance billing as "the labor speech of the campaign."

It will go on the air tonight between 9:30 and 10 over one of the National Broadcasting Company's networks and over the entire Columbia Broadcasting system at a cost of approximately $22,000 to the Democratic National Committee.

Circumstances under which the Democratic board of strategy made a last-minute decision in Hyde Park yesterday afternoon to concede that tonight's broadcast will be sufficiently political to warrant payment for the radio time led to the belief Mr. Roosevelt was prepared to swing into the campaign home stretch with an open and admitted attack on

OHIO REPORTS 70 ACTIVE CASES OF PARALYSIS NOW

COLUMBUS, Sept. 11.—There are now 70 active cases of infantile paralysis in Ohio, Health Director R. H. Markwith declared today as he revealed the reporting of nine new cases.

One of the new cases was recorded in Shelby County, the first to be reported from that section. Seventeen deaths have been recorded in the state from infantile paralysis this year.

ATHLETE SLAIN, BODY PLACED AT UNION TERMINAL

CINCINNATI, Sept. 11.—A bullet through the heart, the body of man who apparently was murdered at the entrance of Cincinnati's union terminal today was identified as that of Robert T. Myers, 22-year-old athlete and weight lifter.

Police were understood to have several clues to Myers' slayer. One of these, it was reported, led to Dayton.

B. I. S. Youth Confesses Drug Store Burglary

The Gallaher Drug Store, West Main Street, must have some kind of a magnetic attraction for Hobart Payne, 18-year-old Lancaster Pike youth. Several months ago young Payne and Harley (Peck) Smith broke into the drug store and hauled away numerous articles. The lads were arrested and sent to the Boys' Industrial School, near Lancaster.

Payne broke away from the Industrial School a week ago, and a day or two later it was discovered that the Gallaher store had been looted again. Payne was suspected immediately.

CONFEREES FACE STIFF ARGUMENT ON DRAFT AGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Agreement on the final form of the conscription bill neared today as a joint senate-house conference committee, named to adjust differences between the two bodies, clashed on the questions of draft age limits and the Fish 60-day postponement amendment.

"I think we should get an agreement tonight," said Sen. Sheppard (D) Tex., chairman of the conference.

A compromise of age limits was considered, while it was indicated strongly that the Fish Amendment, opposed by the administration and condemned by Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie, would be scrapped.

Although the senate voted to confine the draft to men between 21 and 30, inclusive, senate conferees offered to extend the upper age limit either to 35 or 39. House conferees rejected the proposals. The house voted a 21 to 44 year, inclusive, bracket.

As it appeared probable that the conferees — virtually all strongly pro-administration on the draft issue—might abandon both the senate age limits and the Fish Amendment, Sen. Clark (D) Mo., threatened a fight.

"If they scrap the 21-31 (21-30, inclusive) age limit and the Fish Amendment there'll be the biggest display of fireworks in the senate you ever saw," declared Clark.

The War Department, it was learned, informed conferees that it now strongly favors the 21-44, inclusive, age limit. At one time War Department officers said the 21-30, inclusive, limit was satisfactory.

FLAMES DESTROY FOUR CLARKSVILLE, O. BUILDINGS

WILMINGTON, Sept. 11.—Deputy state fire marshals were expected to arrive in nearby Clarksville today to investigate the origin of a fire which destroyed four frame buildings.

MUMAW HEARING SCHEDULED FOR FRIDAY AT 7:30

Hearing for Charles Mumaw, suspended Circleville patrolman, has been set for Friday night at 7:30 before Safety Director Karl Herrmann in City Council chamber.

The safety director said that as far as he knew the hearing would be open to the public. Ray Davis, attorney for Mumaw, said that he felt additional delay in the case was unnecessary and that after Paul Adkins, attorney for Police Chief William McCrady, had asked that the case be postponed Tuesday night he had asked that the case be heard as soon as possible.

Both the safety director and Attorney Adkins have agreed on the date, he said.

The case originated when bribery charges were filed against Mumaw by Police Chief McCrady, who said that he had received affidavits from Circleville men who claimed Mumaw had solicited them for bribes.

CHURCHILL SAYS NAZIS FAILING TO GAIN SUPREMACY

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Nazi Germany's effort to secure daylight air mastery over Great Britain is the crux of the war and thus far has "failed conspicuously," Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared in a broadcast speech tonight.

Addressing the nation only a short while after the third air raid alarm of the day had ended, Churchill expressed firm confidence that Britain ultimately would emerge superior.

"When I said recently that enemy air attacks could be doubled or trebled," he said, "I was not referring to barbarous attacks but to the great battle between our air force and the German."

"The German losses average 3 to 1 machines and 6 to 1 in pilots. This effort of the Germans to secure daylight mastery over England is the crux of the war."

"So far it has failed conspicuously."

Embassy Garden In Berlin Damaged

NAZI CITY HIT

Reichstag Structure, Other Centers Blasted

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Dropping bombs that tore holes in the garden of the United States embassy, damaged valuable art treasures and hit the German capital's government section, British raiders showered tons of bombs on the city today in the heaviest attack they have yet unleashed.

The United States embassy, within a stone's throw of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's chancellery, was shaken as three incendiary bombs fell in the garden.

In addition, embassy officials said, explosive bombs, either duds or delayed action missiles, dug two deep holes in the grounds and one bomb splinter smashed a window on the first floor of the embassy building, slightly damaging the wall.

The embassy garden was roped off as a precautionary measure pending investigation by police and experts.

In one residential area, officials declared, entire blocks of buildings were rendered unsafe by the hail of incendiary bombs that fell from the raiding planes.

Region Evacuated

With many houses in danger of collapsing, this region was evacuated by residents in favor of safer quarters.

Altogether, it was announced, five persons were killed and a few others injured during the raid, in the course of which the famed, fire-gutted Reichstag building—a world-renowned landmark of Chancellor Hitler's rise to power, was struck by an incendiary bomb. Quick action by fire fighters prevented serious damage.

Scores of incendiary missiles crashed around the government section in the heart of the city and hit the famous Brandenburg Gate.

Surveying the damage, German quarters predicted swift retaliatory blows against the Whitehall district of London and the houses of Parliament in the British capital.

Air raid sirens rang in Berlin at 12:55 a. m. and the all-clear was not sounded until 1:45 a. m. A veritable rain of incendiaries, narrowly missing the American

KANSAS CITY'S INFIELD DUO GOES TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The New York Yankees today bought nine players from their Kansas City and Newark farm clubs in exchange for cash and players. All will report at training camp next spring.

From Kansas City the Yankees drew the famous double-play combination, Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and Second-baseman Jerry Priddy, and Pitchers John Lindell and Don Hendrickson, both right-handers. In exchange the Yankees gave up an undetermined amount of cash, plus Outfielder Buster Mills and Right-Handed Pitcher Tommy Reis.

The Yankees acquire from Newark Right-Handed Hurlers Steve Peek, Norman Branch, George Barley and Allan Gettel, and Outfielder Tommy Holmes. An undetermined amount of cash and two unnamed players are given Newark in exchange.

KING, QUEEN IN SHELTER DURING SOUTHEAST RAID

LONDON, Sept. 11.—King George and Queen Elizabeth took to an air raid shelter during an alarm in a southwest district of London today.

The alarm interrupted Their Majesties' tour of a severely bombed area. Police served the king and queen with tea while the alarm was in progress and they continued the tour when the "all clear" sounded.

The alarm was believed due to passage of German reconnaissance aircraft attempting to take pictures.

R.A.F. DESTROYS POTSDAM DEPOT

Heavy Bombs And Incendiary Missiles Hurlled On Important Station

LONDON, Sept. 11.—British Royal Air Force bombers scored a hit on the railway station at Potsdam, near Berlin, in a raid over German territory, it was announced officially today.

The air ministry said the Potsdam station was hit repeatedly by heavy bombs and several hundred incendiaries in an attack delivered with "great precision" despite a ground haze.

According to the announcement the British bombers located the station and began to attack about midnight.

All the British pilots, the ministry said, claimed scoring direct hits on the station and adjacent yards. Several made gliding attacks through anti-aircraft fire, dropping showers of incendiaries followed by heavy bombs.

Several fires broke out, it was stated, one of them particularly large. The raiders departed after releasing every bomb in their racks.

ITALIAN PRESS HINTS GAS USE NEAR BY NAZIS

ROME, Sept. 11.—A suggestion that poison gas may soon make its appearance in the war on England was voiced today by Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist spokeswoman.

"Difficult days are approaching for England," he wrote in the Giornale d'Italia. "Gas may make its sinister appearance."

"The cost of the war to Britain is attaining a spectacular and unbearable figure."

"At the end, it will have to be paid for with other pieces of the empire—meaning irreparable ruin to the prestige of the empire, which is destroying itself to sustain the cost of England's own defense."

"The entire responsibility for the bombing of London which has been carried out without too much effort distinguishing objectives must be borne exclusively by England."

"Bombing London is not entirely in reprisal since one-seventh of the population is working in war industries."

FAT STOCK SALE PLANNED BY COUNTY 4-H GROUPS

A fat stock sale for Circleville's Pumpkin Show was assured Tuesday night when the 4-H Livestock club, meeting in the office of County Agent F. K. Blair, voted to sponsor the sale, thus abandoning any plans to participate in the Columbus Junior Livestock Show on October 15 and 16.

Twenty-five head of local livestock will be sold, Blair said. Although the livestock club usually participates in the livestock show in Columbus, it feels that much is to be gained by sponsoring a local sale at the Pumpkin Show.

Night Raid Causes Huge Casualties In Big City

TWO TOTS LIVE

Many Stories Of Attack Told By Survivors

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Bomb-battered London was subjected to a terrific new attack from the skies this afternoon as rescue workers struggled to dig the city and its hundreds of victims out of the debris of last night's eight hour onslaught.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—In the worst single tragedy of German air raids on London thus far, almost 500 men, women and children were trapped and feared dead today in the wreckage of an east end school which had been converted into a refugee shelter.

A brief new air raid warning this afternoon failed to deter rescue workers from their frantic efforts to reach possible survivors buried beneath the tangled ruins of the two-story structure although hope was virtually abandoned that any more would be found alive.

Of the first 90 removed from the shattered debris only one person was alive. Soon after, however, rescuers reached two infants—one six months old and one nine months—and by a seeming miracle both were breathing.

The victims took shelter in the school building Monday night after being evacuated from another east end district which had been badly hit.

One gigantic aerial torpedo struck the school squarely, smashing it to rubble instantly. Masonry and steel girders crumpled down on the refugees.

The force of the explosion transformed streets in the vicinity into a mass of wreckage. The majority of the inhabitants escaped injury in air raid shelters, but those in the school building had no chance.

RUSSIA PRESSES ITALY TO TALK OF YUGOSLAVIA

ROME, Sept. 11.—Soviet Russia is bringing pressure on Italy for a settlement of outstanding mutual problems, especially those connected with the future of Yugoslavia, International News Service learned on excellent authority today.

Furthermore, it was revealed, three-way conversations are now progressing among Italy, Russia and Japan to permit resumption of Italo-Japanese trade via Russia. This plan is intended to compensate partially for losses resulting from the British blockade and from the Rome-Berlin axis counter-blockade, it was stated.

Russia, however, is balky at the idea pending satisfaction of her own aims in the Balkans, it was learned.

Moscow has expressed unwillingness to cooperate with the Italo-Japanese trade scheme unless Rome agrees to attempt a settlement of pending Italo-Russian problems, including the Yugoslavian question.

ITALIAN PLANES BLAST TEL AVIV WITH 150 DEAD

CAIRO, Sept. 11—The city of Tel Aviv—deep in the interior of Palestine—today dug out of the wreckage of a terrific Italian air raid which left at least 150 fatalities in its wake.

In a bombing attack described in an official British communiqué as "indiscriminate," Fascist aerial raiders wrecked numbers of homes and started fires which were quickly brought under control. Among the dead were several Americans and five Arab children, it was reported.

Meanwhile, the Royal Air Force struck sharp blows at Italian strongholds in Eastern Africa, blasting airdromes and harbor facilities in eastern Libya.

At Tobruk, according to an official British communiqué, tremendous explosions and dense smoke were observed by R. A. F. pilots leaving the scene of attack. At Derna, two Italian planes were destroyed on the ground.

El Ghibu and El Adem also were raided in the widespread aerial offensive, it was said.

ARMY CUTS RED TAPE TO ORDER 14,394 PLANES

figures available, the airplane situation as of today was:

Plants On Hand	Order
Army 1,800 (X)	17,191
Navy 2,204	4,900
Total 4,004	22,091

X—Only about 300 of the Army planes now on hand are modern, front-line combat ships.

Prior to the 14,394-plane procurement program, the Army had already placed orders for 2,797 ships, accounting for the 17,191 figure for the number of planes yet to be delivered.

The Army's speed-up letters, tantamount to formal contracts, were sent to the following companies:

Airplanes: Boeing, Consolidated, Glenn L. Martin Co., North American Aviation, Douglas, Lockheed, Bell, Curtiss, St. Louis Airplane Division of Curtiss-Wright, Republic Aviation, Beech Aircraft, Vultee, Fairchild Aircraft, Ryan Aeronautical and Stearns Division of Boeing.

Engines: Ford Motor Co., Continental, Lycoming, Allison and Wright.

Propellers: Curtiss-Wright.

Army officials did not reveal how many ships or motors would be ordered from each manufacturer contacted yesterday. Nor did they reveal the types of planes. However, from the announcement it was apparent that the Army was ordering all type of craft from pursuit ships, capable of flying more than 400 miles an hour, to heavy, four-motored bombers that can fly at subsonic heights.

20,000 Immediate Goal

Total immediate goal of the Army is 20,000 fighting ships, of the Navy, 15,000. Ultimate goal of both branches is to build up production facilities to a point where 50,000 ships a year can be built. There was no official prediction of when the immediate or ultimate goals would be reached.

Michael king once more

THE Romanian wheel of fortune has spun once again and Carol of Romania finds himself again in exile with his red-haired friend, Madame Magda Lupescu, and his son, Michael, on the throne of the unhappy Balkan kingdom. Carol was first driven into exile when he refused the demand of his ailing, righteous father, King Ferdi-mand, to give up the companionship of Mme. Lupescu. When Ferdinand died Carol's son, Michael, then only five years old, became king though the boy's grandmother, ex-Queen Marie, was regarded as the real ruler of the kingdom. In a coup d'état, Carol suddenly emerged from exile in 1930, seized the throne and put an end to his mother's power. Mme. Lupescu returned to Romania. Carol's wife, Princess Helene, went into exile in her homeland, Greece. Carol made himself dictator and ruled with a strong hand until the axis powers forced him to name General Ion Antonescu, friend of the Iron Guards (Fascists) as premier. Then Carol abdicated.

NAZI OFFERING SOUTH AMERICANS TRADE PACTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 — Warning that Germany is offering arms and munitions to gain economic footholds in South American countries, Sen. Wagner (D) N. Y., today urged immediate approval of trade subsidies to offset the Nazi program. Wagner, sponsor of the $500,000,000 trade subsidy program under consideration in the senate, said he has been reliably informed that Germany recently offered one South American country $30,000,000 worth of arms and ammunition "merely as a friendly gesture."

4-H CLUB NEWS

Salt Creek Valley 4-H Club The Salt Creek Valley 4-H Club held its regular meeting September 2 at the home of Dwight Rector, Jr. The meeting was delayed for some time until the arrival of Bob Strous, our president. The members played bingo until his arrival, after which the meeting opened in regular style.

During the business session, we decided to arrange a theatre party for the benefit of ourselves, this event to take place Sunday evening.

After the business meeting we enjoyed excellent refreshments prepared by Mrs. Rector, assisted by Miss Sara Jane Rector. While enjoying the "cats", we were entertained with piano solos by Mrs. Rector and her daughter. After the piano solos, the two musicians blended their skill in a delightful rendition of "Over the Waves."

The club disbursed after an enjoyable time, in anticipation of Sunday evening's theatre party. Don Strous News Reporter

BERLIN RAIDED; CENTER OF CITY HIT BY BOMBS

embassy, exploded around the Pariser Platz, where the French embassy building and Berlin's world-famed Adlon Hotel are situated. They also fell on the Neue Wilhelmstrasse and the Kurfuerstendamm—Berlin's "Broadway."

The International News Service Berlin staff was forced to evacuate its office on Dorotheenstrasse for the time being because of a high-explosive time bomb which landed in the middle of the street only 40 yards away.

When the bomb was removed and danger of an explosion over the staff was permitted to return to the office.

Four waves of British planes—totalling perhaps 20 machines—damaged the government section of Berlin, including both the old Reichstag building, which was gutted by the historic Reichstag fire in 1933, and the Brandenburg gate in the Unter den Linden.

But the Wilhelmstrasse proper, by some apparent freak of fate, was untouched.

Pall Mall in Danger

Angry Germans predicted, on the basis of official threats during the past few days that London's House of Parliament, Whitehall and the famous Pall Mall now "face the prospect of bombs" in retaliation for the work of the R.A.F. this morning.

Two official announcements were issued regarding the raid on Berlin. The first, in sarcastic phrases, stated:

"The RAF during the night again carefully avoided military objectives. Their attack was deliberate and carefully planned. The city was clearly visible under the star-lit sky and many flares were used."

"The Reichstag building, the Brandenburg Gate and a number of apartment houses in the center of the city were hit."

"None of these objectives can be called military."

"The plan of fire and execution of the raids leads to the conclusion that the British supreme command had given explicit orders."

The American embassy building was not damaged, but it shook considerably under the concussion of exploding bombs. A Dana Hodgdon, first secretary and consul, and several members of the night staff were inside the building at the time.

One of Berlin's most famous thoroughfares, the Charlottenburger Chaussee, leading from the Brandenburg Gate to the Victory Column, was left with a six-foot bomb crater. Iron lamp posts lining the street were riddled with holes.

The building housing the German Engineers Association, where international conferences are held and where foreign engineering students are housed, was set on fire by an incendiary bomb and the Academy of Arts, close to the American embassy, also was hit. Another incendiary bomb hit St. Pedwig's Hospital.

A German Air Force major who witnessed the raid from the Adlon Hotel said waves of British raiders flew in from the west at heights varying from 10,000 to 18,000 feet and systematically threw down flares.

The major claimed that the British pilots thus must have had sufficient visibility to "aim definitely for targets in the government section."

He estimated that the bombs dropped by the raiders weighed about 1,000 pounds each. Thus the announced policies of his opponent, Willkie.

Setting for tonight's speech is the annual convention of the A. F. of L. International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, over whom presides Daniel J. Tobin. In 1932 and 1936, Tobin headed up the labor division of the President's successful campaigns and he recently resigned a brief job as White House administrative assistant to help Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn's drive for labor votes for the Roosevelt column this November.

The President worked on tonight's speech carefully during his four-day stay at Hyde Park. White House attaches who had seen the advance draft refused to discuss the nature of its content but it was obvious that they expected the President to strike a hard blow at his Republican opponent.

Secretary Early, in announcing that the speech to the Teamsters' Union would be sufficiently political to demand that the Democratic committee pay for the radio time, reminded reporters of several paragraphs in Mr. Roosevelt's July 19 midnight radio acceptance of a third term nomination, delivered to the Chicago Democratic convention.

"I shall not have time or the inclination to engage in purely political debate," the President said that night, "but I shall never be loathe to call the attention of the nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact which are sometimes made by political candidates."

In an annual Labor Day message to the nation, the President said that more than 9,000,000 employed in 1932 had gotten jobs since advent of the New Deal—and that exclusive of 2,000,000 on WPA, CCC and NYA rolls. He also said in that statement that the farmer's income had grown appreciably as a result of the AAA program, and that some 400 leading industrial firms showed a neat profit last year as against no profits or losses in 1932.

Meanwhile, other stories of stark tragedy unfolded in the wake of the fourth consecutive nightlong raid which for more than eight hours rained suffering, death and flaming destruction on London.

Late this morning, more than six hours after the all clear signal had sounded, delayed action bombs dropped by the Nazis were still exploding spasmodically all over the town. Simultaneously a new flight of German planes was reported over Wales.

While it was too early for any complete accounting of casualties or destruction, pitiful stories poured in from stricken areas.

One of these told of 50 mothers and babies who had escaped death yesterday when a maternity home was bombed only to be wiped out last night by a 1,800-pound bomb after being evacuated to another hospital.

An undisclosed number of casualties likewise were caused in still another central London hospital, which was struck by an explosive bomb. This blast damaged an entire block, and today, hours afterwards, demolition and rescue workers were hard at work.

In another part of central London still another famous church was demolished by high explosives and by fire.

Four more high explosives and scores of incendiary bombs blasted and set fire to a warehouse in the business area of central London, damaging a number of adjoining buildings.

Still another building on one of the best-known corners in central London was badly damaged by a direct hit which broke a gas main and scattered glass and debris for blocks.

In another section a huge housing estate was damaged by a high explosive bomb blast which wrecked a nearby building. More than 200 residents had taken shelter, however, and escaped unhurt.

JUDGE ASSAILS MAN NABBED ON SUPPORT COUNT

After lecturing him severely for violating the terms of his parole for non-support, Judge Meeker Terwilliger, Wednesday, gave William Armstrong, Kingston, until Saturday to make arrangements to make the necessary payments, threatening him with a prison sentence if he failed to do so. Armstrong, indicted by the September term grand jury, and apprehended Tuesday, was supposed to pay $2.50 each week for the support of his wife. Judge Terwilliger said that he had failed to make any attempt to make the payments.

Two other persons were placed on parole Wednesday by Judge Terwilliger after they had been indicted on non-support charges. Raymond Smith, of Lithopolis, was placed on a two year parole, and must pay $12 each month for the support of his wife and child.

Thomas Powers, in County Jail on $500 bond after his indictment, was placed on a two-year parole and is to make monthly payments of $10.

George Bunn, 19, indicted for carrying concealed weapons, was granted a two-year parole and is required to pay the costs of prosecution.

One of the safest places to be during a country thunderstorm is within an all-steel automobile.

Weather Not Favorable

Although the Germans managed to drop uncounted bombs, the weather was not wholly in their favor. Anti-aircraft guns time and again were able to drive back the raiders and it was reported that two planes were damaged so seriously that they probably were unable to reach their bases.

One high explosive bomb fell squarely on a block of apartments in a London square, but casualties there had not been ascertained at a late hour this morning.

Arizona Senator Beaten; Other Results Studied

Superior Judge Ahead Of Ashurst For Place In Upper House; Stassen, Shipstead Win; Three Aides Of Late Huey Long Lose

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 11—Henry Fountain Ashurst, Arizona's veteran United States senator, was given little chance today to overcome the lead gained by Superior Judge Ernest W. McFarland of Pinal County in the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Early returns, delayed throughout the state by heavy rain storms, showed that Judge McFarland was leading Senator Ashurst by at least two to one.

Political observers have predicted the incumbent's defeat, pointing out that in late years Senator Ashurst, the only senator without a predecessor, has become an infrequent visitor to his home state.

In the gubernatorial race Sidney P. Osborn was leading Governor Robert Jones by a comfortable margin.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 11—Both Gov. Harold Stassen and U. S. Senator Henrik Shipstead appeared today to have been renominated by substantial margins by Minnesota Republicans in yesterday's primary, on the basis of incomplete returns.

Shipstead's strength at the polls was considered particularly significant with regard to the state's position in the November presidential election, because the senator, after 18 years as a Farmer-Laborite, turned Republican this summer and announced himself opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt.

Stassen, who in early returns piled up a ten to one lead over two opponents, Ernest F. Jacobson and A. B. Gilbert, is closely identified with Wendell Willkie, the GOP presidential nominee, and is one of Willkie's closest advisers.

Shipstead's margin over seven opponents was about 3 to 2 in early tabulations.

On the Farmer-Laborite ticket, Elmer Benson, who was defeated for reelection as governor by Stassen two years ago, was running a close race with State Senator George H. Lommen for senate nomination.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11—At least three of the candidates sponsored by reform Gov. Sam H. Jones against incumbent Democratic congressman identified with the old Huey Long machine appeared today to have been victorious in yesterday's Louisiana primary.

The three apparent winners among the reform candidates, on the basis of early returns, were F. Edward Hebert over Rep. J. O. Fernandez in the first district; Hale Boggs over Rep. Paul R. Maloney in the second, and J. Y. Sanders over Rep. John K. Griffith in the sixth.

In the third district, Reform Candidate James Domengaux was ahead of the incumbent, Robert Mouton. In the fourth, Rep. Overton Brooks was leading Henry O'Neal, but probably will have to face O'Neal in a runoff. A runoff also seemed assured for the fifth, where Rep. Newt V. Mills was slightly ahead of Ed L. Gladney.

There was a possibility a runoff would be necessary also in the eighth district, where Rep. A. Leonard Allen was being given a battle by James Aswell.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 11—Governor George D. Aiken, outspoken foe of the New Deal, today was the Republican choice for United States Senator.

Aiken defeated his friend and rival for the nomination in yesterday's state-wide primaries, Ralph E. Flanders, by more than 8,000 votes.

The governor was nominated for the senate seat left vacant by the death of United States Senator Ernest W. Gibson.

Senator Warren R. Austin was unopposed for Republican nomination as senior senator as were Representative Charles A. Plumley for Republican congressional re-nomination and Lieutenant Governor William H. Willis for GOP gubernatorial nomination.

In the Democratic primary, candidates for all major offices were unopposed including Herbert B. Cummings and Ona S. Seales for United States senators, Bernard J. Leedy for congress and John McGrath for governor.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 11—One of the state's closest political battles today saw Senate President Robert C. Blood apparently victorious over James C. Farmer for Republican nomination for governor.

Unofficial returns from yesterday's state-wide primary showed

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Daun of Manchester, Virginia and Kenneth Fleming of Akron, O., attended funeral services held for Mrs. E. P. May on Saturday and then visited over the week-end with Miss Adah Machir. On Monday all enjoyed a luncheon at the Wardell Tea Room near Circleville.

Misses Mary Etta and Esther Young were hostesses at their bridge club, on Thursday evening. Those present were Mrs. Charles Stires (Helen Wilson), Mrs. Lee-man B. Routt, Mrs. Wallace Evans, Mrs. Bernice Immell, Mrs. Howard Minser, Mrs. J. L. Young, Mrs. Lloyd Evans, Mrs. Eugene Jones, Mrs. Paul Stires, Mrs. William Steele, Mrs. William Wood Jr., and Mrs. Charles Wood and Misses Marietta and Esther Young. Betty Evans and Mary Lou Wilson. At the close of the playing Mrs. Routt was presented the high score prize and Mrs. Charles Wood second. Frozen Barvarian salad, fancy bridge sandwiches, potato chips and coffee were served. A miscellaneous shower was presented Mrs. Charles Stires.

In the senatorial race, Congressman Conrad C. Wallgren led the Democratic ticket for the nomination to succeed U. S. Senator Louis B. Schwellenbach, recently appointed to a federal judgeship.

In the Republican senatorial race, Stephen F. Chadwick, Seattle attorney and past national commander of the American Legion, had virtually no opposition. Chadwick bolted the Democratic party to support Republican Standard Bearer Wendell Willkie.

In one period of two years, the composer, Schubert, wrote 239 songs.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

WHEN THE UMPIRE WASN'T LOOKING
This column has several times advocated the acquisition by the United States of sea bases off the Atlantic Coast whether owned by Britain, France or The Netherlands. Consequently I approve the objectives sought in the President's secret negotiations with Great Britain.

This column, however, emphatically does not agree with the methods used nor the consideration paid. The proposal cleverly ties together a desirable end with a dubious, if not wholly illegal, means.

The acquisition of sea bases for the defense of the Panama Canal and the eastern shoreline of the United States is wholly desirable. The transfer of fifty destroyers to Great Britain is a wholly different proposition, and the fact that it was done without submitting it to Congress is very disquieting. What other secret arrangements has the PETTENGILL has with Great Britain, France, Holland, Poland, Belgium, China, or other nations is not known.

But if the transfer of a part of the United States fleet to Great Britain is not sufficient to enable her to withstand her foe, who can doubt that Mr. Roosevelt, either before or after the election, if re-elected, will go to whatever further extreme he may deem necessary?

Congress would undoubtedly ratify the proposed agreement to acquire these sea bases either for cash, or better, as a credit against the war debt of the last war. But would Congress approve the transfer, as payment for the leases, of the United States destroyers? I doubt it. But even if it would, it should have had the opportunity to pass on the question.

In a curious document Attorney General Jackson has ruled that Mr. Roosevelt, without authority from Congress, can part with possession of United States property and determine that an option to lease is sufficient payment. Mr. Jackson also finds that it is legal to transfer over-age destroyers but that it would be illegal to transfer the mosquito fleet which as he says, "although nearly completed, are already obsolescent." No lawyer ever split a hair 'twist north-east and south-west side with such fine precision. However, if Mr. Roosevelt can legally transfer over-age destroyers, he can also transfer over-age battle-ships for any similar considerations which might be offered.

That the United States Government, Congress concurring, could legally acquire these sea and air bases either for cash or as a credit against the war debt, no one can doubt. But can this Government lawfully pay for the bases with warships?

In 1871 the Treaty of Washington was adopted by the United States and Great Britain. This treaty settled the claims of the United States against Great Britain because the latter permitted the Alabama and other warships to be outfitted in British ports to raid the sea commerce of the North during the Civil War. In fact, while the war was on, many in the North demanded that President Lincoln declare hostilities against Great Britain because by outfitting these warships, Great Britain was aiding the South. In the treaty, Great Britain admitted that she had done an unlawful act and paid $15,000,000 to compensate for the destruction to Northern ships.

This historic treaty became a part of international law. Article Six of the Hague Convention of 1907, to which the United States and Germany are both parties, provides "The supply in any manner, directly or indirectly, by a neutral power to a belligerent power of warships, ammunition, or war materials of any kind whatever is forbidden."

The State Department, in support of Mr. Roosevelt's act, excuses the transaction on the ground that Britain never ratified the Hague Convention. Technically, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt may not have broken the letter of this treaty. But that the transfer of warships by a neutral nation to a belligerent nation in time of war is a violation of international law seems to be clearly established by the Treaty of Washington to which Great Britain was a party.

The same principle found expression at Havana, Cuba, in 1923 at the Sixth International Convention of American States to which the United States was a party, in which neutrality was defined in part as follows: "The neutral state is forbidden (a) to deliver to the belligerent, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatever, ships of war, munitions, or other war material; (b) to grant loans or to open credits for it during the duration of the war."

Although there was strong expert opinion in the Navy Department that, as a matter of our own national defense, these ships should not be transferred to a foreign power, nevertheless it is conceivable that Congress might have ratified it if consulted. However, Congress was not consulted. This leaves the impression that Mr. Roosevelt was afraid Congress would not agree. So he did it anyway. If Mr. Roosevelt will not consult the constitutional voice of the American people on an important matter like this, they had better consider putting someone in his place who will consult them and their representatives during the critical next four years.

AS surely as the new Buick FIREBALL* straight-eight engine sets the performance pace for the coming season, the graceful silhouette of the new Buick SPECIAL and CENTURY cuts the automotive style pattern for another half decade.

The reason is not alone the grace of its Buick-created lines, nor the appearance of solid substance in action that gives this honey the look of a speedster straining at its leash.

It is the practical quality of great room enclosed in sleek and flowing lines—more room for legs, for elbows, for heads, more room for entrance and more room for carrying luggage—that makes this the silhouette the cars of the future will seek to achieve.

Why wait for that—when in this Buick you travel in a car that, like time and tide, obviously isn't waiting for any man?

AS A VETERAN SEES IT

A GOOD DEAL has been said in criticism of present-day America. We are called soft and selfish, unwilling to make sacrifices or face hardships for the sake of liberty. It is said that our army is not up-to-date and officers and men suffer from the same softness as other citizens.

A newspaper man, veteran of the World War, attended the recent army and National Guard maneuvers in Wisconsin. His report refutes some of these criticisms. A soldier of 1917-1918, he says, notices these things.

Today's army moves faster and hits harder with fewer men.

It has superior weapons—though not enough of them yet.

Its trained officers are superior to those of 1917.

The National Guard units, with the additional training they are soon to have, will make superb troops. They earned high praise from officers in their work last month.

The idea today is not to keep everything a big secret from the lads who have to do the actual fighting, but, where practical, to let them know what the problem is.

The ablest military man in the country is chief of staff, which is a good beginning for building adequate defense.

Leadership today is better; officers lead instead of drive, with good results.

Johnny Buck Private is a fine soldier—quite as good as his predecessor in 1917. He has not been infected with any of the "isms." He doesn't look for trouble, but he can hold up his end if anybody starts something. He's a tough baby when he gets mad, and he'd be plenty mad in a useful way if the country were attacked.

All this might have been taken for granted. America isn't really so blind and indifferent as certain loudly local individuals have made it appear.

PRICE MALEFACTION

AMERICANS generally will find it hard to understand a penalty imposed on Joseph C. Boucher, a gasoline station operator in Tyngsboro, Mass. He was fined $50 for selling $1.02 worth of gas for an even dollar. The charge against him was "selling motor fuel at a price other than the price posted at the time of sale."

It is unusual, and perhaps technically unlawful, to announce a certain price for a commodity and then ignore that price in the actual transaction. But it wouldn't occur to a consumer that it was criminal to give him a better bargain than the seller promised. And if such generosity is wicked in business, maybe it's wicked in private life, also, to do more than you've promised for another fellow.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

CONGRESS is desperately anxious to adjourn pretty early in September in order to permit its members to get home, where they can electioneer more effectively for themselves during the remaining few weeks ahead of November 5, when the ballots will be cast.

Of course the representatives, on an average, are in a greater rush than the senators, because all of the former have campaigns on their hands, while only a third of the latter have terms just expiring over for from two to four years more, aren't so anxious.

Still, they have a fellow feeling for their brethren, who are under the gun right now.

If the lawmakers can't out-and-out adjourn, at least they'd like to take a succession of little three-day recesses, giving them time to get away from the capitol more or less. It's a satisfactory enough arrangement for those who live nearby. Even those whose ball-wickets are at a distance from Washington excuse themselves as absentees during the brief, perfunctory sessions which punctuate the main recessional period.

No more legislative business is transacted while a series of these short recesses is in progress than when the two Houses definitely are adjourned.

However, the public doesn't notice a mere recess. It's conscious of an adjournment, and there's a deal of sentiment to the effect that solons ought to be regularly on the job at as critical a world juncture as the present one. Indeed, they've been warned, in plenty of mail from their constituents and in numerous newspaper editorials, that they'll be considered derelict in their duties if they scatter, to attend to their political fences at such a time.

ALWAYS A PEST

The White House always considers congress a pest. I don't believe there ever was a president who didn't think he could manage his policies better without Capitol Hill butting in with advice and criticism.

The executive mansion normally looks forward with dread to the opening of a regular legislative session and greets its adjournment with relief. Occasionally it has to summon an extra assembly in an emergency, but it invariably is with regret.

President Roosevelt already has remarked that he can call an "extra," whenever he deems it necessary. The implication is that the country needn't worry a bit if the government's legislative branch does scatter for awhile—he'll bring it together again in short order if he sees fit. Congress is jealous, though. It wants to be out electioneering, to be sure. Yet it's afraid he'll steal some sort of a march on it while it's gone from Washington.

Oh, congress is as suspicious of the President as he is of congress. They're rivals of a sort, under our political system.

SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES

Practically all representatives want to get out in the sticks and electioneer for themselves. There may be a few exceptions—chaps who are confident their districts are dependable for themselves. But the overwhelming majority aren't overly sure.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana is one, outstandingly.

Burt is conspicuous in the upper congressional chamber. Anything he says there is as widely quoted in Montana as if he'd said it right there. And it has repercussions, from the floor of the senate, wider than it would have if he said it only locally. Montana gets it as much as it would were he addressing himself directly to his own state's voters. And it has additional punch because he says it to the whole nation. Burt's a good deal of an anti-administrationist. That's an essential reason why the administration would like to have him adjourn.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WILLKIE TO REVISE STAND

WASHINGTON—It was Senator Arthur Vandenberg, a rival for the presidential nomination, who had a big hand in Wendell Willkie's abrupt shift on the "draft industry" issues.

Vandenberg himself voted against the Russell-Overton amendment, but on the entirely consistent ground that he was opposed to conscripting both men and property. He was dismayed, therefore, when Willkie blasted the conscript industry amendment, after endorsing the conscription of men.

Previously, Vandenberg had tried to get over his isolationist views to Willkie—unsuccessfully. So this time he wrote Willkie saying frankly that he thought he had made a mistake, which brought an invitation to come to Rushville for a personal talk.

Before leaving Washington, Vandenberg told Republican colleagues he intended to advise Willkie to climb off the shaky limb on which he had got himself. They authorized the Michigan Senator to say that they agreed heartily. So in the two and a half hours he was closeted with Willkie, Van delivered the message with some straight-from-the-shoulder words of his own.

Six hours later, after Vandenberg had departed, Willkie issued the statement revising his stand.

ROOSEVELT'S HOROSCOPE

The White House has received an astrologer's forecast about the election. Unsolicited, this forecast gives "an interpretation of Mr. Roosevelt's horoscope" to the effect that "he cannot help but be elected." Also, "Mr. Willkie's horoscope is spotty, and not strong enough to hold up against Mr. Roosevelt's strong planet."

The astrologer is Mrs. Julia S. Hotchkiss of Westport, Conn. She throws in for good measure the prophecy that Germany will be defeated between January and April, 1941, by England, Turkey, Russia, the Balkans, and indirectly the United States.

FRENCH POLITICS

The French Ambassador has received instructions from Vichy to present a demarche urging the return of Bill Bullitt as Ambassador to France. He has not yet presented the demarche, and probably will leave this little task to his successor, Henri Haye, who is a great personal friend of Bullitt's.

Reason for the French desire to have Bullitt back is that they realize they cannot be enemies of Britain and friends with the United States at the same time, and they want to heal the diplomatic breach with the United States.

One important reason for this is to get food to France. With Bullitt in Vichy, they at least can represent their viewpoint.

Another purpose might be to resume diplomatic relations with Britain. The British are willing to negotiate any time the French take the initiative, and Bullitt might be the intermediary.

Ball Games To Play With Baby

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● The baby should have regular exercises just as much or more so than an adult. The time to begin baby's systematic exercise is about the end of the third month when the eyes have developed so that he can begin to perceive objects.

As with adult's exercises, psychology holds that the best form of exercise for the baby is that which centers the interest on something else but the exercise—some sort of game.

A light inflated ball is the toy that will for the longest space of time give the baby the most exercise. He is no different from the adult in that either—a ball is the basis of all games, and red is the color—still similar to sound adult custom. Red in movement will fascinate any human being and baby is no exception. "A red ball bouncing in bed will let the mother get ahead" (with her house work). That's a little weak as an effort to contribute to nursery rhymes, but the best I can do this morning.

For Stretching

A red balloon tied to the baby's wrist will keep its interest up in the jerks and swings of the arms and legs and the body stretching that are the best form of baby's exercises.

The football game, as suggested by L. E. Eubank in HEALTH CULTURE, is a good one. This can be begun when the other exercises have strengthened the baby so that he can make a reasonably successful attempt to sit up. Tie a string between two chairs put back to back, and from the middle suspend a ball. Put the baby on his blankets between the chairs and set the ball to swinging. When the baby finds out that he can give that thing a kick, the game begins. The future fullback may get so interested in this game that mother will have to stop him before it becomes too exhausting.

Team Work

Ball rolling or nursery floor tennis demands two players, and mother is elected for the position of number two. This exercise, of course, comes later—six to eight months. Gradually gains will be made in the ability to direct movements—the advantage of any game—and any gain of this kind augments the development of the nervous system.

The baby does not need food after exercise. In fact, better not, so the exercise period should be arranged between feeding schedules. Baby may cry a little after exercise from a natural healthy fatigue, but that does not mean he is hungry.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

The 1902 model Mercer, formerly owned by Kelly R. Hannan, Lancaster and Circleville garage dealer, was purchased by Talmer Wice, local fire chief.

Announcement was made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Katherine Firsich, daughter of Mr. Joseph J. Firsich of North Vernon, Ind., and Mr. Mac M. Mader, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mader, East Main Street. It was to be an event of early November.

Two trucks of the Circleville motor transport company were used to take the members of the Circleville High School Band to the New Holland centennial.

10 YEARS AGO

The Buick roadster of Virgil May, near Circleville, stolen from its parking place in the city, was recovered in a ditch near Laurelville badly wrecked.

More than 150 bankers of Group 4 of the Ohio Bankers' Association attended the business session at the parish house of the St. Philip's Episcopal Church. Immediately after the session, the bankers gathered in the O.N.G. Armory, East Franklin Street, where dinner was served at noon by Mrs. Irwin Boggs. A program of speaking included talks by many banking leaders. Clark Will arranged the affair.

With expense shadowing proceeds, it was announced that there would be no publication of the Circleville High School year book, "The Circle," according to a report of the school officials.

25 YEARS AGO

A remonstrance against paying Watt Street between Pickaway and Washington Streets was filed with council by Mrs. E. B. Rife.

The hardest rainstorm of the year swept over Circleville, with an inch of rain falling in about 30 minutes, causing the Scioto River to rise.

BEFORE THE BLITZKRIEG

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by RUPERT GRAYSON

READ THIS FIRST:

"Gordon, James Scotland Yard agent, becomes interested in a stranger, who calls himself Pullinger, and has an agent assigned to follow him, but the latter loses the trail. Gun's superior, known only as X, is interested also, but assigns Cotton to the case of a missing bomber. The agent goes to a new 'hush-hush' station where new and secret types of military planes are tested. When Gun goes up with Squadron Leader Hazeldene in a very closely-guarded plane, which supposedly contains important secrets of construction and equipment, but really does not, he gets a radio message to meet another plane, G.1313, which takes off to meet the R. A. F. mystery. Following orders from G.1313, Hazeldene and Gun land at a spot unknown to them. Three men get out of the black bomber, one wearing an R. A. F. uniform. The British pilot and the secret agent are told they are to follow G.1313 to still another place.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
"WHAT HAPPENS AFTER I follow you to a new destination?" asked Tommy.

"Afraid I can't tell you, old chap—for the simple reason that I don't know myself," replied Trent.

"That's a good reason, anyway! And whereabouts is this new destination?"

Trent shrugged.

"There again—see answer to previous similar inquiry. In other words, I have not been instructed to inform you, and so I'd better not. You will simply follow us!"

"I dare say," Tommy protested. "But how far is it? My gas is limited."

"That's all right. You don't have to worry about that. My chaps have just loaded you up with a new supply."

"Oh! they have, have they?" Tommy's voice hardened, and Gun mentally congratulated him on being a better actor than he would have thought. "Well, I hope you don't mind me saying so, Trent, but I don't like my machine being messed about with unless I'm there to supervise."

Trent immediately became placatory.

"Now, don't take it like that, old man! Your precious machine hasn't been 'messed about with' at all—refueled, that's all!"

"I still don't like it!" snapped Tommy.

"Well, if that's so, I'm sorry. But don't blame me. I'm only carrying out instructions."

"What! You were told to refuel my machine without referring to me?"

"More or less!"

"Well, I'm damned, but I'll make a noise about this when I get back."

"Yes, why not—if it's going to make you feel any better. But—"

The light from the doorway was suddenly darkened. Gun swung around quickly. It was one of the other men.

"All correct, sir!" he said to Trent. "Both machines refueled and in order."

"Very good, Jones! And what about the coffee and sandwiches?"

"Yes, sir—Smith is seeing to those!"

"Tell him to put a jerk in it—time's getting on. It's nearly seven o'clock, Emma, English time!"

"Very good, sir!"

The man departed, and Trent turned to Tommy:

"We'll just have a bite, and then get going again, if that suits you."

"Looks as though it's got to suit us," grumbled Tommy, sulkily. "He was playing his part well. 'I don't mind telling you that all this hush-hush stuff's damned silly.'"

"I agree!" Trent soothed him. "But I suppose it's all necessary, so what's the use of worrying?"

The other man came in with a huge plate of thick bullock beef sandwiches and a pot of coffee.

"Get to it, lads!" Trent directed. "I don't know about you, but I'm starved."

The ate in more or less silence. Gun was watching Trent, and making up his mind that he was neither a Britisher nor an American. He belonged to one of the Latin races. And he wouldn't have passed as an Air Force officer in a football crowd.

They made a rapid meal of it, and then left the dugout, Trent locking the door behind them. As they walked across to the planes Trent said:

"Take a squint at that bus of mine. She's not so bad, you know."

"She's a sinister looking brute, rich capitalist nations envious, eh, comrade?"

The sweet pea is a native of the island of Sicily. It was first mentioned in 1695, by an Italian monk, who sent seeds to England and Holland.

Russian field marshals are to receive jeweled stars bearing one three-karat and 25 smaller diamonds. That oughta make those any way!" was Hazeldene's comment.

"Sure," agreed Trent. "And she can be as sinister as she looks, let me tell you. She mounts four very up-to-date machine guns, with ceteras!" His tone seemed to have a meaning—a veiled threat, Gun wondered . . . ?

They looked her over, while Trent got into his flying kit once more. Gun sensed that he had only removed it in order to display his Air Force uniform.

"Now, if you don't mind, we'll take off first. You follow immediately."

"Very well!" responded Tommy, in his sulky tone.

The crew of three climbed into the big plane, and took off in neat, workmanlike manner. One of the other men was acting as pilot; Trent sat in the observer's seat.

"That chap can fly, all right!" Gun commented.

"And he's got something to fly there, too!" said Tommy. "A big, dangerous brute. Fast as the devil, too! Say, Gun—" his tone changed to one of excitement. "We're on our own here now. What about trying to break into those dugouts and have a look around? Or we might fire the gasoline store!"

Gun grinned.

"I love enthusiasm, flying fool, but don't overdo it! What if you think they'd be doing all the time? They've got machine guns!"

"Oh, hell!" moaned Tommy, and quoted: "How can a man die better than facing fearful odds?"

"By getting a piece of useful information in the process, that's how!" said Gun. "Better get going, Tommy!"

They climbed in, the engine of the little scout roared, and then they taxied forward and took the air, clearing the lip of the pocket comfortably. The big plane was circling overhead, waiting for them. Gun spoke into the radio-phones.

"Follow at about the same distance, Tommy—and watch the course carefully. Let me know the course, and I'll report to X. Over!"

With a final circle around the black plane started off, and Tommy fell in behind. Gun waited for a report as to the course. Instead, there suddenly blared at him such a stream of blasphemy that he jumped in his straps. And then, at last, something coherent:

"By God, those perishing baskets have done half the instruments in. The compass and speedometer are both out of action, and for all I know we may be flying straight into heaven—or the other place!"

In Whitehall X and the wireless operator held the fort. War Office and Air Force had alike gone home to sleep.

There was a bed in an adjoining room, used for emergencies, such as these (and in the last year or two there had been many of them) upon which X could have slept had he wished. Or could he?

The fact was that, dog-tired and worn out as he felt, it was doubtful if he could have slept at that juncture. He had an uneasy feeling that he had sent Gun Cotton to his death—and, apart from their official relations, he had a very strong regard for Gun. Very strong, indeed. And for Toni.

X swore beneath his breath, lit another cigarette, and poured himself out some more steaming coffee.

He glanced at the last message from Gun, decoded a half-hour previously onto a slip of paper before him.

"G. calling X. Have just had orders to descend. Only vague notion that we are somewhere over Germany. Ground invisible because of clouds. G.1313 has just gone down—we follow now. Will report first opportunity. Tony. Tony."

Damn it! What was happening out there, wherever it was? Gun could look after himself, all right, but if he had come down into a nest of enemies. . . . A shot or a knock on the head!

Devil take it, why had he sent Gun on this assignment? The job had to be done, but there were others who could have done it. . . . But possibly not so well, and efficiency was everything on a job like this one. No, it had to be Gun—

X grinned to himself.

"Good man, Gun! That's the way to bluff 'em!"

Nevertheless, he waited with added anxiety for the next message.

Plans to sponsor a play to be presented to the public during November were made at the Tuesday meeting of the Luther League at the Trinity Lutheran Parish house. This was the first fall session of the group, 65 members and guests gathered for the occasion.

After routine business, the topic "Choosing One's Companions in Life" was discussed by Miss Margaret Good. Christian and non-Christian companions were discussed by the members with much enthusiasm. The true value of religion was also brought out in the topic.

Gladden Troutman was appointed to arrange the cast for the play. The League was asked for volunteers to paint the fire escapes of parish house during this month.

It was decided to have a wiener roast and hay ride September 24, the group going for the evening to the home of George Fischer, Jackson Township. Paul Matz was chosen to secure sticks for this roast. Discussion of other plans for the League closed the meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Calvary Evangelical Church met Tuesday at the church with eight members and two visitors present.

After the opening devotional service in charge of Miss Minnie Wilkerson, president, Mrs. W. D. Ramsey read and discussed the lesson from the year study book.

Benevolent Association

The monthly business sessions of the Circleville Benevolent Association were resumed Tuesday at the city cottage with Miss Florence Dunton, president, in the chair for the hour. Routine reports were made by Mrs. W. W. Robinson, secretary, and Mrs. Clark Will, treasurer.

The interesting report of Miss Clara Southward, case worker, for the month of August was read, noting 69 visits in the home of applicants and 12 other visits in their behalf. Interviews for the month totaled 125, with 26 interviews in behalf of clients listed. Twenty persons donated clothing and other articles during the month.

Supplies were given to 66 families including 19 pairs of shoes; 45 garments for men and boys; 135 garments for women and girls; 46 garments for babies. The 155 miscellaneous articles distributed were dishes, knives, forks, spoons, ice tongs, sewing basket, cookies and several glasses of jelly. Several women were given scraps of material to make quilts or comforts. Miss Southward mentioned at this time that there was more demand for quilt patches of print or woolen material than could be supplied, the pieces being asked for to make useful coverings for the winter.

Miss Southward said that there was urgent need for mattresses, sheets, pillow cases, curtains, window blinds, chairs, rugs and kitchen utensils. She also stated that there was need of clothing for boys as most of the supplies during the summer have been for women, very little for children.

Eight families were on the milk list during August.

In closing her review of the month, Miss Southward spoke of the distressing housing situation, which she says contributes greatly to family troubles of the needy of Circleville.

GREYHOUND SEEKS MARK;
REMUS TOP IN FEATURE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 11—
Greyhound, world's champion trotting horse, will attempt to crack the mile record of 2:01, held by Linnipeg, in a race against time
today at the Kentucky State Fair Ground grand circuit. Sep. Palin, who held the reins for Linnipeg's record, will pilot Greyhound, holder of 18 world records.

In yesterday's $2,000 feature stake race, Remus, 3-year-old fast-stepping trotter, won in 2:04 1/2, showing the same form which gave him second place to Spencer
Scott in the 1940 Hambletonian.
Remus defeated Helen Gallon,
Modern Boy, Violation and Jim
Volo in that order.

A crowd of some 2,000 fans was on hand to witness the first harness race at the Kentucky Fair in 15 years.

CINCINNATI TRIES AGAIN

BOSTON, Sept. 11 — The Cincinnati Reds were to attempt again today to play a twin bill with the Boston Bees. Rain yesterday washed out a scheduled double-header. One of the games was rescheduled as a part of today's double bill but the other contest was called off entirely.
The league-leading Reds have a seven game margin over second-place Brooklyn.

WOLVES USE OHIO LAD

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 11—
An unknown 170-pound junior from Norwalk, O., who failed to win recognition last fall, today had apparently won a starting place in the University of Michigan backfield this year. He is Norman Call. Call was named by Coach Fritz Crisler to the Wolverine backfield along with All-American Tom Harmon, Captain
Forest Evashevski and Bob Westfall.

Mr. Louis Next?

NO, it won't be Mr. Joe Louis

next for Billy Conn, the light-heavyweight, who ascends the fistic ladder with a knockout victory over Bob Pastor.

For Louis will meet Tommy Farr, the Welshman, on the coast in October. Billy still doesn't pack enough weight and isn't ready for Mr. Louis, according to the fistic observers.

Trejo and Jackson appear as

the likely ends at the start, with Smallwood, Carr, Woods and Bach
also well-liked by the mentor. The tackles at the start will be Sabine
and Liston, the guards probably Martin and Crawford, with Brown

at center.

Jenkins' return to form gives the backfield some speed that has been lacking in the early practices.
Staley and Geib will handle punting and passing assignments, with Kline also doing a lot of chucking when he enters the lineup.

Not much is known of Holy Rosary's strength, although the Irish always put up a battle. Winters, Bernhard and Wein are gone, but Kappas, last year's quarter,
and Finerman, last year's fullback, are returning in addition to numerous linemen headed by Gatter-dam, left tackle. Finerman is a brother of Jack Finerman who plays center on the Notre Dame varsity.

Officials for Friday's game will be Koterba, Ross and Dunton.

KAMPY GOES TO DODGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Alex
Kampouris, the diminutive Greek second baseman who smacked out 36 homers for the Newark Bears this season in the International League, has been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers for a price estimated today at $25,000. Kampouris, a former Giant, and Cincinnati Red, will not be available to report for duty with the Dodgers until the finish of the current International League playoffs which will be too late for service this season unless the Bears are eliminated early.

HEROES AND GOATS

By International News Service
The Heroes: Bob Grove and

Tigers and Tom's hit won game.
Ken Chase, Senators, who pitched six hit bats against White Sox; Truett Sewell, Pirates, who did likewise against Phils.

The Goats: Al Benton, Tigers, who pitched only one inning and lost game for his team; Hugh Mulcahy, Phils, who was slaughtered by Pirates in three innings.

REDS OBTAIN FIELDER

CINCINNATI, Sept. 11—Shortstop Woodrow Williams, of the Louisville Colonels, whom the Cincinnati Reds have been trying to land for two years, today was listed on the Redleg roster. Wil-iams was claimed on waivers from Brooklyn Dodgers, who had him out on option with the Colonels, was listed on the Red-leg roster.

ROCHESTER WINNER

DETROIT, Sept. 11—The Kodak Park team of Rochester, N. Y., held the world's softball championship again after a lapse of four years today, following a 1 to 0 decision over the Bendix team of South Bend, Ind., in the final game of the tournament last night.

RED AND BLACK LINEUP STARTS TO TAKE FORM

Jenkins Almost Ready For Duty; Trejo, Jackson Lead
For End Positions

Another brisk scrimmage session, the final one before Friday night's lidlifter against Columbus Holy Rosary, was on tap Wednesday afternoon for Coach Roy Black's varsity squad. And, despite the fact that game time is nearing, the scramble for positions continues.

Tuesday evening's drill showed a definite improvement over Monday's, but much was still left to be desired in the form of offensive blocking.

Marvin Jenkins, regular left halfback for three years, showed up to good advantage in Tuesday's session, and indications are that he will get the call at that position, the right halfback spot now being the only questionable position in the starting backfield. Geib will be at quarterback and Staley at fullback with Jenkins taking the left side. Three boys remain as chief contenders for the right half spot, including Jim Moorehead, Normie Anderson and Bob Kline, although the latter has been doing much more work at fullback.

However, his all-around ability may break him into either half or full at any moment. Carl Eby's ankle is much improved and he may see service, but that is not likely.

Trejo and Jackson appear as

the likely ends at the start, with Smallwood, Carr, Woods and Bach
also well-liked by the mentor. The tackles at the start will be Sabine
and Liston, the guards probably
Martin and Crawford, with Brown

SHOW SOCIETY ASKS BIGGER CONTRIBUTIONS FOR '40 EVENT

STORES SELLING LIQUORS URGED TO DONATE $100

Directors After Total Of $2,100 In Donations To Finance Festival

FRED MOELLER NAMED

Greenhouse Man Succeeds Towers As Vegetable, Fruit Director

Contending that those who receive the most financial benefit from the Pumpkin Show should be made to contribute most, Pumpkin Show directors, at their meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday evening, decided to ask Circleville liquor establishments for donations of $100 each to help finance the show, with the understanding that if they do not pay their places of business may be locked up.

Safety Director Karl Herrmann told Pumpkin Show directors that under the state law they would have authority to close such establishments as they saw fit. With Pumpkin Show finances a vital issue this year, the directors felt that liquor establishments, some of which made many times their Pumpkin Show donations last year, could well afford to pay more. It is hoped that $2,100 may be raised through donations from Circleville business men this year. Mack Parrett, secretary for the show, reported that he had sold $2,570 worth of space, within $1,000 of the total amount sold last year.

Free Acts Reduced

As another economy measure, directors voted to cut the amount to be spent for free acts, music and amusements, and rides to $800. On other years, $1,000 has been appropriated for such attractions. Directors, however, promised T. D. Krinn, head of the department, that additional funds would be granted if he found he could not operate on the reduced amount.

A display of wild bird and animal life may be included in the show this year. C. E. Webb, state conservation officer, told the directors that he felt fox, eagles, raccoon and squirrels might be obtained. He also suggested that conservation clubs in the schools might be used to help with a conservation demonstration and winter feeding scene. Webb told the directors that he would contact the conservation clubs and suggest more definite plans at the next meeting.

A Public Service Studio Plane from WCKY, Covington, West Virginia, will be added to the show this year. The plane, a trailer-type broadcasting station, will broadcast from the street each day. Boy and Girl Scout troops were added to the groups participating in the parade. The troops will also have exhibits of handicraft, first aid and scout lore in the Junior Fair division.

Fred Moeller, Circleville, RFD 4, greenhouse operator was elected a director to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of O. J. Towers. Mr. Moeller will have charge of the fruits and vegetables displays.

DARBY SCHOOL NEWS

The school year opened last Tuesday, September 3, with an initial enrollment of 261. Several more are to start to school yet.

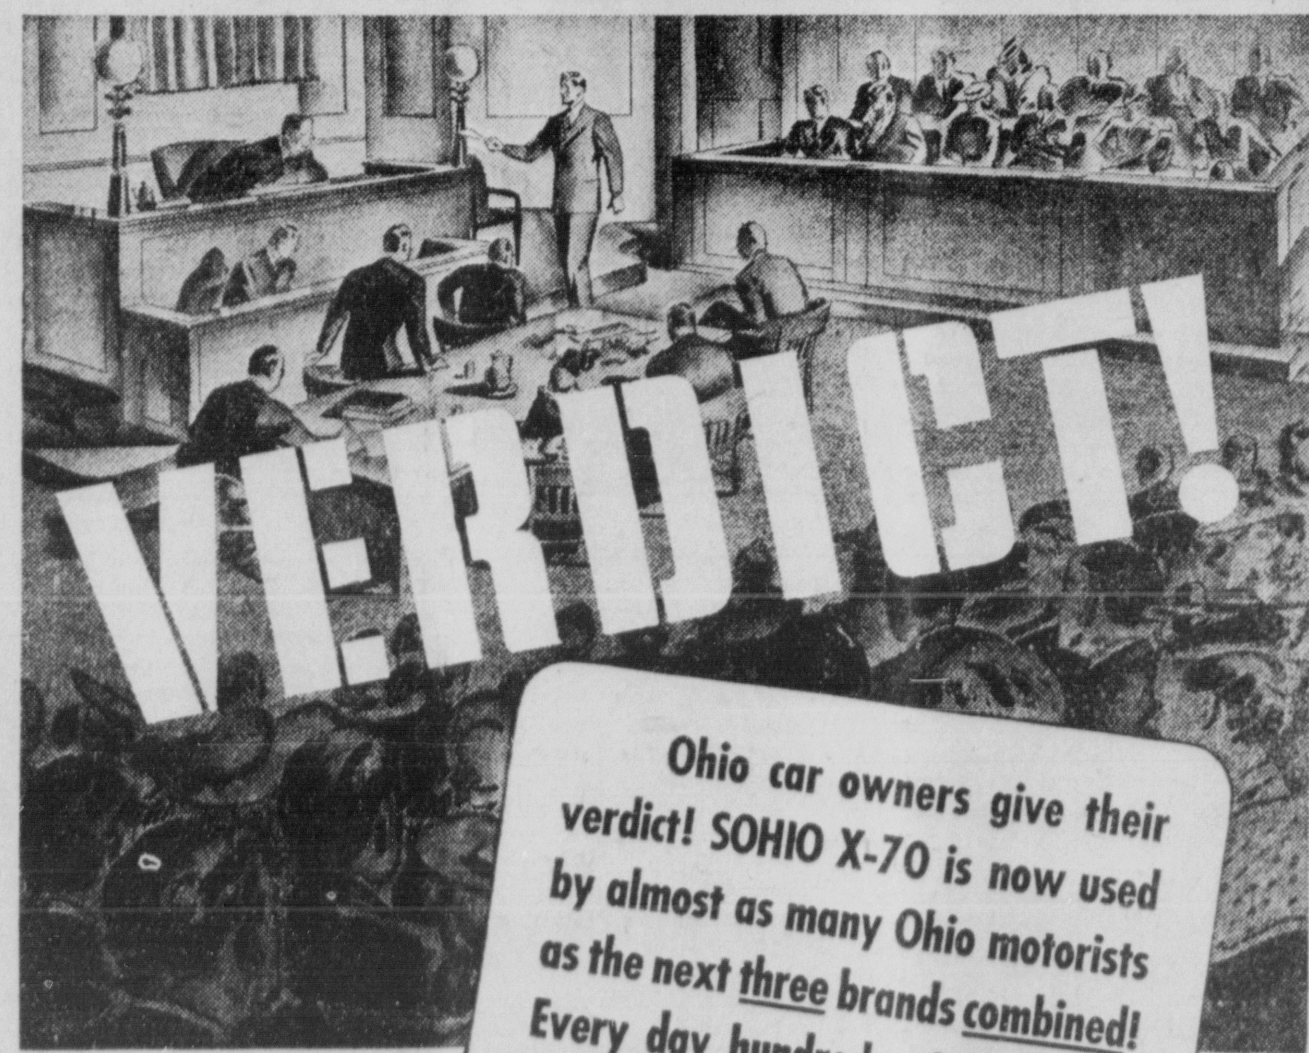

Leonard Hill, principal of the high school, resigned last Friday to accept a much better position in the schools of Crestline, Ohio. Miss DeMuth was promoted to the principalship and Audrey Hayden Claugus of Newark, Ohio, was appointed to teach the mathematics and sciences.

The Darby Township Girls' Four-H Club contributed a fine first aid kit with complete contents to the school last week. This act of generosity will be appreciated by all concerned.

A softball game has been scheduled for Friday with Scioto.

The first P-T-A meeting of the new year will be held Friday night in the school gymnasium. A good program is being prepared.

is angling for appointment as draft administrator, a new office created by the conscription act.

A World War veteran and successful business man and farmer, Stark is on close terms with the White House. With his senatorial hopes dashed by a narrow margin and his term as governor expiring this year, Stark is anxious to remain in public life and is pulling wires to land the compulsory training job.

However, he is up against two tough hurdles—Truman and Bennett Clark.

The two Missouri senators have let it be known privately that they will raise personal objections to Stark's confirmation if he is named draft administrator. Clark is anti-New Deal, but Truman has a 100 percent Administration record and Roosevelt is not likely to rebuff him by appointing his enemy.

Note—Colonel William ("Wild Bill") Donovan, World War hero and 1934 GOP candidate for governor of New York, has been sounded out on the draft administrator post but indicated he did not want a desk job. He intends to return to active military service.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

When the President gave Claude Wickard his credentials as the new Secretary of Agriculture, Wickard handed the President a calling card which read, "Confidentially—I'm not for Willie."

HATCHED AND UNHATCHED

The "No Politics" sign has been hung up for the 100 odd business executives who are 1-a-year officials of the Defense Commission.

In a confidential legal memorandum written by Blackwell Smith, acting general counsel of the Commission, the business men are warned that they come under the Hatch Act and engaging in the campaign is taboo. If they want to go political, they will have to quit their federal jobs.

While this red light was being flashed on the defense officials, the green signal has been given U. S. ambassadors and ministers. There is nothing in the law barring them from campaigning, and they can take the stump—provided they get the okay of their boss, Secretary of State Hull.

Ambassador William Bullitt, whose recent Independence Square broadcast stirred a hornets' nest of isolationist outcry, plans to make a number of others on foreign policy. Bullitt has received more than 25,000 letters on his address, and is now busy expanding his Philadelphia speech into a book, which will be rush into print.

BILL GREEN REBUFF

Representative Abe Murdock's smashing primary triumph in Utah was double-barreled. Besides unseating veteran anti-New Deal Senator William King, Murdock also administered a spanking to AFL President William Green.

In the closing days of the hot election, Green suddenly leaped into the fray with a letter to King, on official AFL letterhead warmly endorsing him as a "genuine friend of the American Federation of Labor." King made much of this, reproducing the letter throughout the state in large newspaper advertisements.

Murdock is a member of the House committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board, where he vigorously opposed AFL proposals to axe the agency. So he countered with a coup of his own. He made public a "My Dear Abe" letter from Roosevelt.

The President did not put the hand on Murdock in so many words, but made it clear that he liked him and considered him a very important lieutenant. Making the most of the message, Murdock published it in big ads captioned, "Elect Roosevelt's Friend U. S. Senator."

What Murdock didn't know was that Senator King tried to get just such a letter and failed.

Before going out to Utah, King called on the President, and despite a long and bitter record of anti-New Deal warring, asked him for an endorsement. When Roosevelt shook his head, King then proposed a "friendly little letter."

But the President smiled and said, "Sorry, Will. Not this time."

Note—Despite Green's letter and the fact that the CIO endorsed Murdock, AFL leaders in Utah campaigned for him openly.
